WILSON ADMINISTRATION AND THE FARMER

For more than forty years the Republicans were in almost undisputed control of the federal government—legislative and executive—what legislation in all these years found its way into the statutes in the interest of the farmers?

Senator James A. Reed, in his great speech in the senate a few days ago, reviewed the legislation enacted during the forty months of the Wilson administration, in which he set out these important items:

(a) The federal farm-loan act will enable farmers to obtain loans for as long a period as 30 years.

Experts estimate that interest will be reduced to from 4 to 4½ per cent. The farmer will obtain his money without commission charges and participate in profits of the land bank. The difference between the interest now charged and the interest which will be charged by the land banks will, in the course of a few years, equal the principal of a loan.

(b) The creation of the regional banking system and the administration of the Comptroller of the Currency have already resulted in a general reduction of interest rates by from 1 to 3 per cent. In some parts of the country where usurious rates were exacted the practice has been almost entirely broken up. This has subjected Comptroller Williams to bitter criticism by the usury-exacting banks, but he will not be denounced by those who have hitherto been the victims of extortion.

(c) The reserve bank bill created a competitive market for $150,000,000 of farm mortgages, and for $391,592,000 of cattle paper, as heretofore stated.

(d) The Secretary of the Treasury furnished money in abundance at exceedingly low rates to move crops. The benefits of this inured to the farmer who always suffers when there is a shortage of money for the transportation of his crops to market.

(e) The enactment of the shipping bill means lower rates on agricultural products to European markets, the benefits of which will largely go to the farmer.

(f) In the revision of the tariff careful attention was paid to the special necessities of the farmer. Accordingly there was placed upon the free list the following articles, all of which are peculiarly used by the farmer: Plows, tooth and disk harrows, headers, harvesters, reapers, agricultural drills and planters, mowers, horse-rakes, cultivators, threshing machines, cotton gins, wagons and carts, machinery for use in the manufacture of sugar, and all other agricultural implements of every kind and description and many other articles not above mentioned; also all animals imported for breeding purposes.

(g) The appropriation for eradication of the cattle tick has been doubled; that for the control of hog cholera has been increased from $100,000 to $360,000. The foot-and-mouth disease was eradicated at a cost to the government of $4,500,000.

(h) The total agricultural appropriations have been increased 50 per cent.

(i) A Division of Markets and Rural Organization has been created to study and disseminate information regarding the best methods of transportation, storage, marketing, distribution, standards, and so forth.

(j) The agricultural extension act, backed by an $8,600,000 appropriation by the federal government, provides for co-operation with the states in the dissemination of farm information. This will place two expert farm demonstrators and specialists in each county of the United States.

(k) Public construction of battleships, transports, and other vessels in United States navy yards extended. Repairs to vessels of the navy to be made in governmental instead of private yards. Steadier work assured to employees of government navy yards.

(l) Licensed officers, such as masters, mates, and pilots, guaranteed right to quit, and protected when reporting defects of their vessels to government inspectors.

(m) Bureau of Mines act extended and strengthened. Ten new experiment stations and seven new safety stations provided.

(n) Senatorial investigation of industrial dispute in coal fields of West Virginia, whereby peace was restored, the eight-hour day secured, check weights provided, and 10 per cent increase in wages gained; right of organization guaranteed and other improved working conditions included.

WHY A LEADING REPUBLICAN WILL SUPPORT WOODROW WILSON

Among the many strong men drawn from the Republican party to the support of President Wilson, is America's foremost expert on foreign trade relations, our greatest statistician, Roger W. Babson of Boston.

It is not so much because he believes the President's policies are best for the upbuilding for our trades, our foreign relations, the expansion of our industries, that caused Mr. Babson to give his allegiance to Wilson, however. There is a higher reason.

"It is because Mr. Wilson seems more interested than Mr. Hughes in the moral side of such questions as banking, shipping, railroad, tariff, labor and relations with other nations that I now intend to vote for him in November," says Mr. Babson.

"I am for Woodrow Wilson, not because he is a Democrat, for I am not a member of the Democratic party. I am for Woodrow Wilson, not because of business reasons, for Mr. Hughes' policies temporarily would bring me greater profits. I am for Mr. Wilson because I believe that he has tried to apply the Golden Rule to solving great national and international problems."

President Wilson, says the statistician, is working in the interest of the "greater majority." The people know it and they will re-elect him.
